ACTFL Convention and Expo 2023

Three presentations at ACTFL this year will feature work related to ILETC's Investigating Pedagogies for Advanced Proficiency project. The ILETC team will also be at the Expo with all the National Language Resource Centers. Come say hello!

We Want to Hear About YOUR Work

If you are presenting at ACTFL 2023 or at another conference this fall, let us know and we'll spread the word. Send us the conference name and your presentation title by 10/06/2023, using this Google form.

New Resources for Your Teaching: We Authors

We are now offering two invaluable resources for your teaching: We Authors Heritage and We Authors L2. These platforms provide a public space for the work of heritage and second language students across CUNY to showcase their writing. Open to instructors of any language taught at CUNY, these resources enhance learner engagement and language proficiency by allowing students to share their coursework online, with an audience beyond the classroom. iletc.commons.gc.cuny.edu/we-authors

News about CUNY's National Language Resource Center (LRC)

The Center for Integrated Language Communities (CILC), a CUNY LRC focused on the teaching and learning of languages at Minority Serving Institutions, is starting its second year of a four-year cycle. CILC is currently piloting a training on how to integrate text-based tasks into L2 and heritage courses, for instructors of Arabic, Italian, Japanese, and Spanish, and also collecting data for the Heritage Interpreting project. Use the links to read about these and all of CILC's projects.
